Red, White and Blue Festival a success

The buzz around town is that the Red, White and Blue Festival had a larger crowd, local businesses made more money, and more people had a good time listening to good music. A Bullard Banner News online poll showed that more than 85 percent of the respondents enjoyed the festival.
